Praises State Dairy Industry

HARRISBURG (AP) - Gov. Lawrence declared yesterday the state's dairy industry has "only begun" to tap the full potential of Pennsylvania's milk markets.

"If we are to continue to expand, we must devote a portion of our time and effort to the development of new and improved marketing techniques," the chief executive told a milk promotion luncheon meeting.

Lawrence pledged his administration's backing to strengthen milk promotion in Pennsylvania. The governor praised the state's milk control law-often a center of controversy-as "a beneficial and highly workable law."

Education Committee's Report Merits Adoption

The Lawrence Administration introduced two measures in the House on Tuesday night and said enactment of one or the other is mandatory to finance the first-year program recommended by the Governor's Committee on Education. The committee, incidentally was carefully selected on a nonpartisan

The bills carry out proposals offered by Gov. David Lawrence when he appeared before the General Assembly early last week.

First, he requested passage of a tax on stocks, bonds and other forms of intangible personal property of out-of-state companies. The statewide six-mill levy would raise an estimated $27.5 million a year.

As an alternative, the Governor suggested a two percent tax on returns from investments - stocks, dividends and interest - which would produce some $30.6 million

A minimum of $26.8 million would be needed to pay the first year of the educational program costing $380 million over a 10-year period.

"We must provide for community colleges, for scholarships and loans, and for expansion of state-owned and operated institutions," the Governor told the

"It is equally clear that we must help private schools, of which Pennsylvania has such a wealth, to continue to be the bulwark of higher education in this state," he added.

"We are already late in developing a truly sound education program in Pennsylvania," the chief executive declared in a strong plea for adoption of the committee's far-reaching recommendations. He warned, too, that constitutional limits on next year's session preclude action on any matter other than financial.

Mr. Lawrence took note of probable opposition to his tax proposals when he observed in an address at Drexel Institute last Saturday:

"It takes no courage whatever to oppose taxation for no tax is popular. It takes consummate courage and dedication to insist that vital programs, such as education, be properly financed by tax revenues, no matter how 'unpopular' these might be.

"I do not believe the people of Pennsylvania are willing to write off the future of their children as a bad debt. I do not believe our citizens want cheap oratory against taxation as a substitue for better classrooms, against teachers who are adequately paid, and against young men and women who will be able to decide the future of man-

"There are no free rides on the road to better schools and colleges and universities, just as there were no hitchhikers on the road to American independence," the Governor declared.

In his talk before the Assembly, Mr. Lawrence described the education study committee as a "completely nonpartisan group" and advised the legislators he expected them to provide the nonpartisan support needed to carry out the committee's report.

Pennsylvania's present program for education is inadequate to meet the needs of this state; therefore, it should be enriched along the lines suggested by the study committee.

The taxes proposed by Gov. Lawrence are based on the ability to pay and, consequently, are the fairest we can think of for the Assembly to consider. If the lawmakers find both proposals undesirable, it is their responsibility to enact another kind of taxation which recognizes the ability to pay.

As the Governor pointed out, public education is not one of the frills of state and local government. It must not be relegated to a minor role in our planning for the future. The education study committee's recommendations are sound and should be approved by our legislators, along with the money needed to put them into effect.

As in most religious orientations, thought breaks into three generalized categories, the extreme orthodox, the central conservative, and the oppositional radical. In Communist language, this is the Right and Left Deviationsts from the norm.

Who establishes the norm? The Church Council, the Congress of the Communist Party, determines the normal doctrine which is implemented by the

A look at the record is interesting in a number of respects. It runs something like this:

In the 16 years preceding the advent of the Democratic Leader Administration in 1955 — when Pennsylvania Democrats were so far down the line on the minority role many forgot they existed - their chant constantly centered around championing ational party. view. Khrushchev does not. He the interests of the proverbial "little fellow".

when Democrats actually moved into the governorship, the momentum of the chant carried over into the Leader Administration as it fought for defeat of the sales tax - only to wind up with a three instead of a one per cent evy, to be boosted by the Democratic Lawrence Administration to four per cent!

Throughout those four years of the Democratic Leader Administration the "save-the-littlefellow" cry continued. Labor picked up the chant. However, a more realistic ap-over once - adamant Democrats as some of the lighter heads began to realize that if you don't tax "people", what remains to be taxed — but industry? Over - tax industry and out of the state it moves - and tragically perhaps, without industry, employment falls off, and without employment, no worker income. Who loses out in the end? The proverbial "little fellow". The tremendous hue and cry of "save - the - little - fellow" on the part of Democrats less than a decade ago by now has pretty much faded from the scene as Democrats find themselves faced with stark reality rather than minority hot air.

(During the current session of the Legislature almost nothing has been heard from Administration Democrats on the subject of "saving" the much aligned little fellow.)

Or - look at some of the tax programs endorsed by Administration Democrats since they moved into office six and a half years ago and see where the consumer (the little fellow) stands. Here are ten taxes supported by administration Democrats over the year that would directly affect the consumer:

Alcoholic beverage tax, tax on trade - ins, domestic electric power, telephone service, restaurant meals, repair and service charges, soft drinks, tobacco products, intangible personal property tax and bank shares. If all were enacted, they would total some $180 million in tax

Small wonder perhaps little is being said these days by Pennsylvania Democrats - who this time are in the driver's seat on the subject of protecting the little fellow!

Du Bran WASHINGTON Star

By Bob Clark

Back in the old days Howard Jones was to West Coast collegiate football as were Glenn (Pop) Warner and Knute Rockne to eastern and midwest grid diehards. But like all great men Jones saw the day when the alumni forgot his spectacular past and howled for his scalp. The year was 1939 and Jones, coach of the mighty Trojans of Southern California, was having a season most mentors would like to forget. His record was 3-6 that year and their final game was against intersectional foe. Notre Dame.

The Fighting Irish, naturally dotted with other nation alties, flew into the Coliseum in Los Angeles sporting an unblemished 9-0 log. And from pre-game talk Notre Dame wouldn't have too much trouble recording victory No. 10 either.

Fate, however, has a way of pulling the unexpected and bringing the tall man down to the size of the underdog. But the man probably more responsible for Jones holding on to his job didn't realize it at the time. Notre Dame grabbed a quick 6-0 lead in the contest and held the margin until two minutes before the halftime when the Trojans saw the light of a Helen of Troy in the person of Milt Piepul, the Irish's first class fullback.

With ND on the offensive, Piepul tore through a hole bigger than a Mack truck for what appeared certain first down yardage and maybe another Irish touchdown. Instead a SC player's arm grabbed frantically at air and connected with the ball, forcing the Piepul to fumble. Southern Cal recovered and went on to score, add the extra point and take a 7-6 lead into the dressing room at halftime.

The Trojans pushed over another six-pointer and posted the triumph to knock ND from the ranks of the unbeaten. What was more important though the Far Coast eleven knocked the wolves away from Jones' door, enabling Howard to continue his coaching great tutoring career until his death.

Piepul, now an assistant at Brown University, was an interested "student" at Marty Baldwin's 18th annual Eastern Pennsylvania Coaches Clinic at East Stroudsburg State the past three days.

While Milt minimizes his playing career and talks humorously of himself as the man who saved Howard Jones job, the former Notre Dame fullback was one of the best in the business during his collegiate days. Milt, played under Elmer Lav-

A MAN transferred to Allen town State Hospital from Monroe County jail five weeks ago has been identified as Jerry Joseph O'Hana, 35, Brooklyn, Monroe County on April 17 and was carried on local jail records as John Doe after he refused to identify himself. He was transferred to the hospital after three weeks in the local jail.

Identification was made through FBI fingerprint files, according to Dr. Howard Fiedler, hospital superintendent. They show he was inducted into the Marine Corps in New York City in October, 1944, and that he was picked up in May, 1951. by Pennsylvania State Police at Hazleton for vagrancy.

An attempt is being made to find his relatives. Dr. Fiedler said no relatives were listed on the identification file and he has written Marine headquarters in Washington in an attempt to locate O'Hana's family.

The hospital superintendent said O'Hana is confused and irrational and that he might be missing from a mental hospital outside of Pennsylvania.

The models are stunning . . . the clothes from Israel are breathtaking . . . the Israeli part of the script is written . . the Wyckoff fitting is tonight. Jittery? How foolish can you get! > I hope you are reading our Wyckoff Sale ads carefully, and visiting the store daily. Having seen the copy for the ads in advance of publication, I can verify that this is indeed one of the most exciting June Jumbo Sales we've ever had, from both the customer's and our points of view. Those who write advertising, know the actual names of many of the items which dare not be advertised at reduced price under brand labels-and I can verify that all our top quality from nationally (even internationally) respected houses. Do hurry in and visit every department! You'll be amazed at the dollars you can save by careful shopping.

> The sale continues through June 30th, with the store opening each morning at 9:30. It wil remain open until 9 on Friday, but until 8:30 only on Wednesday. Listen to the radio to, for big news from your favorite store.

There are a number of new things in Wyckoff's vou'll enjoy hearing about. One is jewelry from the Holy Lands-very beautiful pieces of mother of pearl, exquisitely carved . . . Another is the Backless BRA you've been requesting for under your Summer and Fall backless gowns. Betty Colvin and I saw these bras at Maidenform, during the corset shows, and were told delivery was absolutely out of the question until July or August. They were beautiful, however-all lace, either black or white-and Betty knew you would want, and need, them rightaway. So she gave the salesman an argument which probably sounded logical, because they've arrived in all their splendor. The re'ril price is only 3.95, and this doesn't even make sense to me, they're so lovely.

Here's Proof-Ford's 4-Wheel Drive Gives You More of What It Takes Than Other 4-Wheel Drives

• Ford's 223 Six has higher horsepower and greater torque than our competitor's 226 sixcylinder engine:

• Ford has the optional 292 V-8 for even greter horsepower and torque . . . Our nearest competitor DOES NOT offer a V-8:

• Ford has higher capacity front axle and front springs, plus a heavier frame for greater strength and durability!

• Ford has TWO power take-off openings on the TRANSFER CASE. Ford also has one PTO opening on its optional 4-SPEED transmission . . . Our nearest competitor has only one PTO opening (located on transfer case)!

• Ford has a heavy-duty 11" clutch standard with both the Six and V-8 engines . . . Our more comfortable than other cabs, with greater seat width, hip room, shoulder room, glass area and seat cushion adjustment. Ford also has a Custom Cab option which offers additional comfort, style and convenience features not available in our competitor's 4wheel drive trucks!

Ford offers a choice of F-100 1/2-ton or F-250 34-ton 4-wheel drive models . . . Our closest competitor offers only ONE conventional model:
